One fine day, Topy, a young monkey was walking, wandering in the forest of Karinju. He saw a young man of about twenty years seated at a foot of a tree puffing a pipe. At that sight, Topy opened his eyes very wide and remained silent.

'Oh!' he said to himself 'If only I could have a pipe too' oh, if only I could send those lovely clouds of smoke from my mouth to the air ! oh if only I could go home smoking and spitting smoke like a chimney.

While these wonderful thoughts chased each other through Topy's mind, all of a sudden the young man who was tired with the sun's heat started yawning continuously , and later lay down and fell asleep. His pipe on the grass beside him.

Topy moved closer to the sleeper and very quietly but gently stretched his left paw and snatched the pipe from the grass, ran away with it like wind.

As soon as he got home, he called his father, mother and siblings taking the large pipe between his teeth, he began to smoke puhh! puhh! When his mother, brothers and sisters saw the smoke pouring from his mouth, they laughed as if they had gone mad. But his father told him 'Take care Topy my son, if you go copying what men do, you will burn this forest which is our home and you will bitterly repent but it will be too late.

Examinations! Examinations!
You deprive us of our time to play
Since we have to prepare for you
Revising work from p.1 to p.7
Going through sleepless nights
All in the name of passing you.

B

Come the day for you
We get instructions from new faces
The invigilators, chief invigilator, scout
It's time and the invigilator orders 'start'
Fear and trembling sets in
Especially for those not prepared.

C

Then it's January
The time when results are expected
Anxiety rules everywhere
Among pupils, teachers, parents
As they wait for the results
Finally, joy for some and sadness for others.
